

Tricap Partners & Co. Hires Wall Street Veteran Founder of ITG Joins to Build Asset Management Business

Wall Street veteran Joshua D. Rose joins New York investment banking boutique Tricap Partners & Co. to establish asset management subsidiary.

New York, NY - May 3, 2010. Joshua D. Rose, one of the founders of Investment Technology Group, Inc. (NYSE: ITG), has joined New York investment banking boutique Tricap Partners & Co., where he will primarily be responsible for the establishment of the firm's asset management subsidiary -- Tricap Investment Management -- which will provide institutions, family offices, and high net worth individuals consultative wealth management services, including the management of proprietary investment funds and exclusive access to various alternative investment funds. Mr. Rose has a distinguished career on Wall Street that has spanned over twenty years, and he is considered one of the leading authorities on electronic and algorithmic trading platforms and systems.

"We've known Josh for quite a few years, and we've always discussed the opportunity to establish an asset management platform," said Eric Saucedo, one of five partners at the firm. "Then the financial markets took a nose-dive for two years, but we think that now is a good time to re-initiate these efforts. And Josh is one of the best out there, so we're lucky to have him as part of our team."

"The market is in a bit of turbulence for asset management firms worldwide, and in uncertain times clients are looking for additional choices," said Mr. Rose. "Tricap Partners is a firm that is well known in the banking community for its exceptional level of integrity, so I think it provides an important foundation to create an asset management business around that. I'm encouraged by the response we have received to date and am very much looking forward to this opportunity."
